THE DISTRIBUTION OF OFFICES.

The Times of the 3d says: Lord Derby had an interview with Her Majesty yesterday, and submitted a list of names which the Queen was pleased to approve. On account of the marriage of the Princess Helena the Council will not be held until Friday, but on that day the present ministers will resign office, and Lord Derby and his colleagues will formally receive their appointments. Public curiosity attaches, of course, exclusively to the distribution of the great offices of State, and we cannot but be interested to learn the names of the new Government. The Secretary of the Colonies is to be Lord Carnarvon. He will, it need not be said, be himself First Lord of the Treasury, and leader of the Government in the House of Lords. Mr. Disraeli returns to his post as Chancellor of the Exchequer, and will be before the chief representative of the Ministry in the House of Commons. Lord Clarendon will be succeeded by Lord Stanley. The character of the new Foreign Secretary is a guarantee that the liberal sympathies in continental matters with which The Times have been justly or unjustly charged, will not influence the action of the new Government. The Secretary of the Colonies is to be Lord Carnarvon. This post has been often carefully disposed of, as if the direction of its dependencies in different parts of the globe were the natural gift of any one who possesses Parliamentary talents and political interest. Of late years the Colonial Office has demanded the keenest judgment and foresight, and we trust that Lord Carnarvon's undoubted ability and industry will enable him to fulfill the functions of his office not less capably than his immediate predecessor. Mr. Walpole will be again Home Secretary. Lord Cranborne will be again Secretary of War. The Grand Seal will be held by Lord Chelmsford. The Duke of Buckingham will be before the Chief Secretary of the Council. Sir Stafford Northcote President of the Board of Trade, and Mr. Gathorne Hardy President of the Poor Law Board. Sir John Lubbock will probably return to the Admiralty. The minor appointments, we believe not yet definitely arranged, but it is said that Lord Longford, who is eminently fit for the place, will be Under Secretary of War.

Ireland will be difficult to the new Government. The choice Lord Derby has made of a Lord Lieutenant is certainly unfortunate. His party contains several men who might fairly be trusted with the government of Ireland, but whoever thought of Lord John Manners for such a place. This amiable but unprogressive nobleman is to receive a peerage, and to be sent to Ireland as Lord Lieutenant, with Lord Naas as Secretary. Lord John Manners is brother and heir presumptive of a Duke, but has no other quality which can entitle him to respect as the successor of Lord Kimberley. We trust we have been misinformed as to an appointment which we cannot bring ourselves to discuss seriously.

SKETCHES OF THE NEW MINISTERS.

The Earl of Derby.

Edward Geoffrey Smith Stanley, Earl of Derby, who has just been called to the helm of affairs in England, is at present 67 years of age, having been born at Knowsley Park, Lancashire, March 23, 1799. At an early age he was sent to Eton College, and subsequently entered Christ Church College, Oxford, where he obtained the Chancellor's prize for Latin verse. In 1821 he commenced his Parliamentary career as M. P. for Stockbridge, and in three years after, in 1824, made his "maiden speech" in the House of Commons. He was elected M. P. for Macclesfield, and in his subsequent address on the subject of the Irish Church he took rank among the ablest debaters of the House. About this time he distinguished himself by his opposition to the Whig Ministry of the Earl of Li. In 1826 he was returned to Parliament for the town of Preston, in Lancashire, and on March 11 of the same year he was offered and accepted the Under Secretaryship of the Colonies under the administration of George Canning, which office he retained after the death of that statesman in the Earl of Ripon's Cabinet until its dissolution, January, 1828. The Reform Bill of 1832 was introduced in 1830, and when Mr. Stanley was appointed to the office of Chief Secretary for Ireland, with a seat in the Cabinet. His acceptance of office necessitated the resignation of his seat in Parliament, and on presenting himself for reelection to the electors of Preston he was defeated by the radical agitator Henry Hunt, but on the retirement of Sir Henry Vivian shortly after he was returned for the borough of Windsor, which he represented until 1832, when we again find him representing a division of his native Lancashire. In the Parliamentary struggle of 1832, which resulted in the passage of the Reform Bill, the Church Temporalists bill, the bill to establish National Education in Ireland, Mr. Stanley took a leading and active part. His position as Secretary for Ireland brought him in conflict with O'Connell and Parnell, and his replies to the fierce attacks of the "uncrowned monarch of the Irish Reel" are splendid efforts of parliamentary eloquence. In 1835 he was appointed Secretary of State for the Colonies, with the special object of abolishing slavery in the West Indies, which was effected under his auspices. In 1840, on the death of his grandfather, and the death of his father to the Earl of Derby, which was known by the title of Lord Stanley, which was given him in courtesy. Three years he retired from the Cabinet, in company with Sir James Graham, the Earl of Ripon, and the Duke of Richmond, in consequence of non-concurrence with the proposition of the Ministry to appropriate the surplus funds of the Irish Church establishment for the purposes of secular education. In 1844 he was offered, but refused to accept, office under the Peel administration. In 1841, the Whigs, whom he had been voting against steadily for some time, were defeated in the election on the outgoing administration in 1841, and on the formation of a new one under Sir Robert Peel, Lord Stanley occupied a seat as Colonial Secretary. In 1844, while his father was still living, he was summoned by writ to the House of Peers as Baron Stanley of Bickerstaff, and at once was recognized as the head of the Conservative element in that body. In 1845, when Peel adopted the Free Trade policy and resolved to remove the prohibitive duties on foreign grain and breadstuffs, Stanley left the Cabinet and became the leader of the Protectionists. In 1845, after his resignation, and Lord Stanley was invited to be offered a seat in the Protectionist Cabinet. The Russell administration was then formed, and during its six years' term of office Stanley led the Opposition. His speech on the Irish Poor Laws, on the affairs of Greece in 1850, and his famous speech of why he declined the Premiership when tendered to him in 1851, when the Russell party was defeated on Locke King's motion for an extension of the franchise, added considerably to his fame as an orator, and are among his ablest forensic efforts. On June 30, 1851, his father died, and he succeeded to the peerage, and was known as the Duke of Devonshire, and attached to the "cluttering bubble." In 1850, Lord Stanley sustained another defeat on the Militia Bill, and Lord Derby was again called on to construct a cabinet, which task he performed within a week after the overthrow of the Whigs. After ten months tenure of office, the Ministry was defeated, and succeeded by the coalition cabinet of the Earl of Aberdeen. When this last mentioned nobleman was driven from power, the same were again offered Earl Derby and declined. Lord Palmerston finally was entrusted with them, in whose possession they remained until the defeat of the Ministry on Gladstone's amendment on the second reading of the Conspiracy Bill in 1858, when Lord Palmerston resigned, and Lord Derby was again called on to undertake the formation of a Cabinet. He did so and introduced a Reform Bill, which, failing to meet with general acceptance, involved his resignation. The Palmerston Cabinet was then given, which continued in power until the death of that statesman, and the formation of the new one under the leadership of Earl Russell, which has just been defeated on the Reform Bill, and which leads to the formation of the new one with the Earl of Derby as its head, and Lord Stanley as its member.

Mr. Disraeli.

The Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, who has received the appointment of Chancellor of the Exchequer, is the eldest son of the late Mr. Isaac Dick, and was born in London Dec. 21, 1804. At an early age he was articled to an attorney, and before he had attained his majority he became an author. "Vivian Grey" appeared from his pen in 1825, and was followed at short intervals by "The Young Duke," "Henrietta Temple," "Contarini Fleming," and other works of fiction. In 1830, on his return from a continental tour, he found England agitated on the question of Parliamentary Reform, and immediately sought election to the House of Commons on Tory principles as M. P. for the borough of Wycombe, but was defeated by a very small majority by the Hon. C. Grey, the son of the then Premier. In December, 1831, he again sought election at the hands of the Wycombe electors, and was again defeated. It was on this occasion that an incident occurred which provoked the celebrated retort of O'Connell: "For aught I know the present Disraeli is the true heir at law of the impudent fellow who died on the cross." Meanwhile, his pen was at work. Letters in The London Times, novels, tales, sketches, were given to the world and favorably received. But it was not until 1837 that he reached what appeared to be the goal of his ambition, when, in the first Parliament of the reign of Victoria, he took his seat in the Commons as member for Macclesfield. His first speech was in 1839, when he was elected to be a teller upon the House, and ever since he has never risen without being listened to with attention. His literary labors continued. In 1839 he published his first novel, "Coningsby," and the same year extracted himself from financial difficulties by marriage with the wealthy widow of Wyndham Lewis, his friend and colleague in the representation of Macclesfield. In 1841 he was elected as one of the representatives of Shrewsbury, and in 1841 published his most successful novel, "Coningsby." In 1845 he published "Sybil, or, The Two Nations," and in 1847 "The Two Nations," and in 1848 "The Two Nations." His attacks on Sir Robert Peel for his adoption of the Free Trade policy, established his reputation as one of the ablest debaters and keenest satirists of the day. In 1849 he found him the recognized leader of the Conservatives in the House of Commons, and three years after, in 1852, he was appointed under the Derby Administration Chancellor of the Exchequer, a position which he filled in the subsequent administration of the Tory party in 1852-53, and to which he was, in 1856, re-elected by the House, and in 1859 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1860 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1861 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1862 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1863 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1864 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1865 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1866 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1867 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1868 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1869 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1870 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1871 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1872 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1873 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1874 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1875 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1876 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1877 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1878 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1879 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1880 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1881 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1882 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1883 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1884 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1885 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1886 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1887 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1888 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1889 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1890 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1891 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1892 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1893 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1894 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1895 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1896 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1897 he was elected to the House of Commons, and in 1898 he was
